Worldtranslation

So you can say what you want

Welcome to a world
without language barriers

Quick, safe and easy

World Translation produces technical documentation and translations for export businesses requiring language professionals who are experts in the market, understand technical terminology and know their stuff.

This is how easy it can and should be said.

On this basis we have one clear objective: we want to do our job so well that language barriers are nothing to speak of. That is why we are not just a supplier of documentation and translation.

We want to be your partner and work with you to create a working relationship that will make it quicker, more fun and easier to conquer new markets and generate export, growth and new jobs in your business.

ABOUT US

Quality all the way

The secret of technical documentation and translation is flexible IT solutions, rigorous quality assurance and professionals handling the coordination of the linguistic, technical and project-related aspects.

We have therefore chosen the most talented specialists in all three areas. The result is unequivocal: highly-trained language professionals who only translate into their native language, specialist insight, and service-minded project managers.

All files are quality-assured in terms of language and technology before delivery. Formatting, fonts and text positioning around images, for example, are checked in the layout. And everything is, of course, always delivered on time – and we always make sure we follow up.

TRANSLATION

People, methods and technology working together

A national and international network of permanent translators allows us to deliver translation projects in close partnership with your own specialists in your business area – irrespective of form and language combinations.

We employ a wide range of translation and terminology tools to ensure that subject matter and technology work together. Our tools include SDL Trados, Transit, and across.

World Translation has likewise built up unique insight into and knowledge of technology, marketing, finance and law – and we are always prepared to learn about new subject areas.

DOCUMENTATION

Professional feedback and a high level of professional skill

Instructions, manuals and datasheets represent an important channel of communication for the users of your company's products. Messages must be clear and intelligible – and national statutory requirements must be complied with.

The quality of these materials is important to your business. Premium-quality materials help you avoid the problems of unnecessary support, incorrect product use, uncertainty about legal requirements – and give users a first-rate experience.

World Translation is aware of this responsibility. That is why we have specialised in consultancy about and production of technical documentation – so that we can be sure that your business is able to strengthen its reputation in existing markets and enter new ones in the most efficient way possible.

World Translation A/S

Ib Brandt Jørgensen founded World Translation in 2005 and has since run the business by focusing on organic growth, first-rate working conditions and superior service as well as a mindful emphasis on quality and use of state-of-the-art technology.
